"NEEDED BATH" EXCUSE

Bingham, Aug. 27.—It is not often that a man who admits his guilt in stealing coal offers such a plea in extenuation as was presented this morning before Justice E. E. Dudley, when James McDonald was arraigned on a charge of petit larceny. McDonald admitted stealing a lump of coal valued at 10 cents from the Butte restaurant in Main street, and the court said "Ten dollars or ten days." McDonald then made a plea for further leniency, declaring that he took the lump of coal to heat water with which to take a bath.
